This comprehensive overview of the field is solidly based on current research, statistics, and theories. Grounded in constructivist theory, but also covering other perspectives, the text focuses on Developmentally Appropriate Practice for infants and toddlers, preschoolers, early elementary school children, and children with disabilities. The bulk of the book examines curriculum, fostering creativity, as well as physical, cognitive, language, and social development. Updated and revised content includes new standards and accountability in the field, a stronger emphasis on working with children from diverse backgrounds, and discussions of the role of families and forms of parent communication.
